Introduction

In academic year 2014-15, the Minister for Education commissioned inspections of all government schools. The purpose of the inspections was to provide a baseline assessment of the quality of teaching and its impact on students' learning. Inspectors checked the progress students made and the standards they achieved, the effectiveness of the leadership and management of each school, and the academic standards, notably in English and mathematics. The reports were published during the same academic year and are available on the government website following the link below.

<http://www.education.gov.ky/portal/page/portal/mehhome/education/baseline-inspections-reports>

In academic year 2017-18, the Office of Education Standards commenced follow-through inspections to report on the progress made by each school since the initial visits in 2014-15.

Follow-Through Inspections

During the follow-through visits, inspectors focused upon the recommendations that had been made at the time of the initial baseline inspections. They evaluated whether the school had made sufficient progress in addressing the areas requiring improvement. Inspectors used a four point scale to comment on progress, with evaluations ranging between excellent, good, satisfactory or weak.

Views of stakeholders

As part of the follow-through inspections, parents, staff and students (Y5 upwards) were invited to comment upon the work of the school by completing an on-line survey. The results from the survey are included within this report.

Follow-Through Inspection of Bodden Town Primary School

The Follow-Through Inspection of Bodden Town Primary School took place from 5th to 7th December 2017. The inspectorate gathered evidence through lesson observations and discussions with staff and students. School documents and, where applicable, examination and assessment data were also reviewed.

Consistency in quantitative terminology

Inspectors use quantitative terms in reports, as follows.

	Definition	Numerical
All	The whole – as used when referring to quantity, extent, or duration.	100%
Almost all	90% and more	90% to 99%
Most	Three quarters or more but less than 90%	75% to 89%
Majority	Half or more but less than three quarters	50% to 74%
Minority	15% or more but less than half	15% to 49%
Few	Up to 15%	0% to 14%

Summary

During this Follow-Through Inspection, the inspectorate evaluated the progress that has been made by Bodden Town Primary School in addressing the four recommendations from the previous inspection report of 2014/15.

The inspectorate judged that there has been satisfactory progress overall.

Recommendation 1

Further establish clear management roles and responsibilities.

The school has made good progress in addressing this recommendation.

Following the previous inspection, a Senior Leadership Team (SLT) had been established consisting of the Principal, Deputy Principal, Lead Teachers for numeracy and literacy, Special Educational Needs Co-ordinator and Heads of Key Stages 1 and 2. The SLT had appropriate remits and clearly assigned responsibilities and were successful in ensuring improved levels of achievement in reading and mathematics across the school. The Principal provided effective leadership to the team and, through the introduction of a programme of monitoring and evaluation, had ensured improvements to the overall quality of teaching.

With support from literacy and numeracy experts working with the Department of Education Services and the Ministry of Education, standards of achievement in reading and mathematics had risen significantly from the very low levels identified in 2015. In 2017 most Y6 students achieved expected standards in reading and mathematics and predicted results for 2018 indicate further improvements in these two areas of the curriculum. However, in 2017, in writing, only around half of the Y6 students left the school attaining the required level of achievement. Recognising this, the SLT had drafted an action plan to improve standards and this had been implemented in September 2017. Strategies included plans for students to write more regularly and write in purposeful contexts and for a range of audiences. Evidence from the lessons observed indicated that, in Years 3 to 6, standards of writing were beginning to improve.

The SLT regularly observed teachers and therefore had an accurate understanding of strengths and weaknesses of teaching across the school. They took positive steps to support and guide staff and under performance was challenged and addressed. The Principal met with teachers to track students' achievements and to identify programmes to support low performing students. The introduction of intervention programmes for literacy and numeracy had been effective in raising standards for participating students.

A School Development Plan and post-inspection action plan had been developed with the support of the Ministry of Education, correctly identifying an appropriate range of strategies to be addressed in 2017-18. However, in addition to this plan, there is a further need to ensure better progress in students' writing from year to year, notably in Key Stage 1 and in early Key Stage 2 classes.

In order to track students' achievement more closely, senior staff had introduced a good range of assessments, particularly in English and mathematics. The test findings provided useful information to staff regarding students' progress and identified areas of learning requiring further attention or intervention. As a consequence of the assessment findings, the school was now well placed to focus upon appropriate priorities.

Recommendation 2

Provide training to improve teachers' mathematical knowledge.

The school has made satisfactory progress in addressing this recommendation.

Staff had benefited from considerable professional development focusing on mathematics and literacy. This had helped improve teachers' skills, confidence and subject knowledge. At the time of the initial baseline inspection in 2014, the quality of teaching had been judged to be unsatisfactory. In this Follow-Through Inspection, 20 lessons were observed and all permanent full-time staff were included in the programme of class visits. The overall quality of teaching was now satisfactory. In around half of the lessons observed, the quality of teaching was judged to be good or better with major strengths in teaching observed in the Year 6 classes. Across the school most lessons were planned carefully, particularly in literacy and numeracy. Teachers used an appropriate range of strategies to successfully engage learners. Teaching quality was more variable in non-core subjects including, for example, social studies, physical education and music, where there was insufficient challenge for more able students. In these lessons, teachers did not use effective strategies to encourage students to think deeply or demonstrate independence or responsibility for their own learning.

The teaching of mathematics was observed in Key Stages 1 and 2 and also in the intervention class for students requiring additional support. Staff demonstrated good subject and pedagogical knowledge. They frequently checked students' mathematical understanding and explored different strategies for problem solving in lessons to help students develop rapid and efficient mental calculation skills. Overall, students' recall of multiplication facts and calculation skills were satisfactory.

Across the school, there were insufficient opportunities for students to use information and communication technology to support their learning. The interactive whiteboards available in classes were used largely by teachers to show information related to the topic being studied. Students did not use laptops or similar portable technology with sufficient regularity to research areas of interest or to explore projects being introduced by the teachers. Consequently, opportunities were missed for students to develop their learning and pursue aspects of personal interest.

Although teaching was broadly satisfactory there were a few lessons where the poor behaviour of a few students limited the pace of learning for others in the class. Teachers used reward schemes and other positive strategies to promote and maintain good discipline. However, particularly in one Reception and one Year 3 class, some students required further support to ensure effective learning and minimise disruption for other students.

Recommendation 3

Ensure that marking offers guidance for students on ways to improve.

The school has made satisfactory progress in addressing this recommendation.

Following the previous inspection, senior staff had developed a marking policy and guidance for teachers. These documents provided clear guidance to teachers about the approach that was to be used when reviewing students' work. Strategies for feedback and target setting had been agreed. Teachers used progress charts to display students' current levels of achievement in reading, writing and mathematics. Students were aware of their current levels and broad aspirational targets.

A review of students' workbooks highlighted examples of good practice in relation to marking and feedback but also considerable inconsistency in practice despite the agreed and approved policy. Feedback was often detailed and diagnostic in literacy but there was significant variability in quality within year groups and across stages of the school. Senior leaders had identified this in a recent work scrutiny and from 'walk through' reviews and had consequently provided feedback to teachers, as required. The Principal and Deputy Principal should ensure greater consistency in marking and feedback and extend the requirements for target setting and review across all primary subjects. Expectations in relation to the presentation of work, the use of joined script and the completion of tasks should be included within the work sampling review to help ensure consistently high standards across the school.

Furthermore, although students were aware of their current levels, few students were able to explain what they needed to do to achieve the next level. In the upper stages of Key Stage 2 in particular there was scope for more overt and regular discussion with students regarding the characteristics of Level 4 or Level 5 work. Teachers should agree ambitious levels of achievement with students to motivate and challenge students to reach their full potential.

Recommendation 4

Introduce consistent and informed planning across all age groups.

The school has made satisfactory progress in addressing this recommendation.

At the start of the academic year 2017-18, a long-term curriculum-planning document had been introduced. This had mapped the content of the curriculum across each year group and was used by teachers to ensure continuity, progression and avoid duplication or repetition of content. The document was used to plan weekly lessons. Joint planning arrangements within each phase of the school ensured consistency in lesson delivery within year groups. Weekly plans were detailed for core subjects but less so in other areas of the curriculum. There was insufficient attention given to students' use of information and communication technology across subjects and, in too many lessons, opportunities for cross-curricular learning were missed. It was noted that although students in Key Stage 2 followed the required Cayman Islands National Curriculum, a modern foreign language was not offered within the planned curriculum at the school.

Staff benefited from a breadth of assessment information including individual, diagnostic data relating to students' skills in reading and mathematics. This information identified the particular strengths of each student and was comprehensive and regularly updated. The assessments informed the intervention programmes and helped identify which students required additional support. However, in the mainstream classes, teachers made insufficient use of the data to plan lessons and match tasks to the differing needs of students.

Survey Results

24 parents, 13 staff and 51 students completed the on-line survey. The results from the survey are detailed in Appendices One, Two and Three to this report.

Only a minority of parents completed the survey. Around half stated that they were satisfied with the quality of education provided at the school. A minority wished to see improvements in communication between home and school, including the information they received about their children's progress and the future plans of the school. Most felt that the school was well led and that their children were making good progress in English. They reported that their children were well looked after by staff and that the school was effective in helping their children develop a good sense of community responsibility. A majority of parents held the view that their children were making good progress in their learning overall, though they were less sure regarding their children's achievements in science. A few parents expressed concern regarding the apparent lack of a dress code for staff and questioned whether a policy existed or was consistently implemented. This matter should be addressed through consultation between the Principal and the Ministry of Education.

Y5 and Y6 students completed the survey. Most felt that they were making good progress in English, mathematics and science. Almost all stated that their lessons were good and enjoyable. They believed they received the right amount of homework from teachers and that the school was successful in helping them choose a healthy lifestyle. A minority of students did not agree that the behaviour of other students in the school was good.

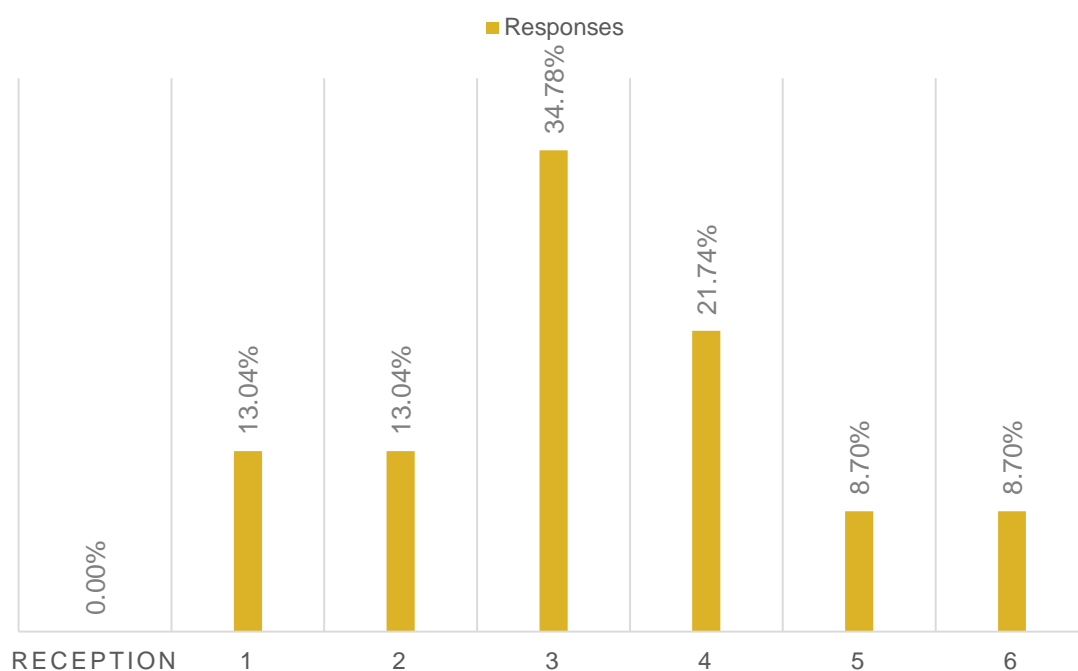

The staff survey was completed mainly by teachers, most of whom had worked in the school for a year or more. Most staff believed that the school provided a good quality of education. They stated that students were treated fairly and that, overall, Bodden Town Primary School provided a safe and caring environment for all members of the school community. Although most staff commented upon the good links with the community, a majority felt that parents were not yet effectively involved in the work of the school.

What happens next?

As overall progress has been judged as satisfactory, there will be no further Follow-Through Inspections of the school. The school will receive a full inspection from the Office of Education Standards within the next four-year cycle, which commences from September 2018.
